

PLUNGED NEAR TO DEATH

Wife of Captain-Contractor
Hurt at Brownsville.

Precipitated down the side of a bluff by the overturning of a runaway rig, Mrs. H. B. Bresee, wife of Capt. Bresee, of Twenty-first street and Campbell avenue, was seriously injured at Brownsville. She was brought to the city in an ambulance this morning and is now confined at the La Crosse hospital.

Mrs. Bresee was being driven from the station to the Bresee farm near Brownsville by a liveryman. The horses became frightened while ascending a bluff road and dashed to one side of the road, overturning the buggy and throwing both the driver and Mrs. Bresee down the bluff side. The driver was bruised somewhat but Mrs. Bresee was badly hurt.

Her injuries consist of a sprained knee, a serious bruise on the head and a flesh wound on the other limb.

W. B. U. WINS

Final Score.

Wisconsin Business University—17.
Sparta High school—0.

In an excellent game the W. B. U. defeated the Sparta high school eleven at the ball park this afternoon.

Through the alleged failure of the station agent for the Milwaukee railroad company at Ripon to deliver in time money sent by F. J. Toland for railroad fare of the Ripon college football team to this city the game between the W. B. U. and college teams scheduled to be played here this afternoon had to be declared off.

As a result of the keen disappointment it is said Mr. Toland will sue the railroad company for damages.

In the eleventh hour the management of the business university team made arrangements with the Sparta high school team to come here today. The game was called shortly after 3 this afternoon. On account of the rain short halves were played.

MOFFAT'S ADDRESS STRONG

Synod Meeting is Most Successful.

(By a Delegate.)

It is gratifying to learn that the session of the Wisconsin Synod just closed at the First Presbyterian church in this city was freely pronounced a record breaker. One man in the Synod for 40 years and prominent in the church and summer assembly work declared it the best Synod he had ever attended. It is a credit to the program committee of the La Crosse hospital.

DR. J. D. MOFFAT.

fat, D. D., the president of Washington and Jefferson college near Pittsburg is a tall, bright eyed, intellectual personage, who was introduced by Dr. Fowler as "The Great Pacificator of the church for ten years past." His address on the "Principles of Rev. Fowler and Thomas were members. It is also a tribute to the success with which the moderator directed the sessions and the hearty fashion with which the Presbyterians of La Crosse cared for their visitors. The resolutions of thanks to both pastor and his people adopted by standing vote were evidently the voicing of genuine feeling. Rev. Dr. Fowler has had a doubly hard time acting both as host of the Synod and its Moderator and his success in his double post ought to be something of compensation to both him and his loyal, hospitable people.

One of the greatest of the many fine addresses at the Synod was that of the Moderator of the General Assembly, who honored this Synod only with his presence. Rev. J. D. Moffat of Presbyterianism was remarkably simple and profound. It abounded in illustrations that really illustrated.

His introduction showed that teaching such a theme was not unfraternal. Learning better to appreciate one's mother did not lessen one's regard for one's neighbors and friends. And many things in one mother would be found good things also in others. He was glad the churches were coming to make more and more of the things in which they agreed. Many things were held in common but there were differences.

Doctrinally the Presbyterian church was conceded to stand for the sovereignty of God. But the speaker suggested with a twinkle of the eye that is only saying that God's is God. Of course if He is a God and King He is sovereign. But He is not hard, arbitrary absolutism. He abounds in goodness and truth. The creed says so. And whatever in a former day may have been read into the creed, we had revised out of it any possibility of making it teach fatalism. God foreordains all things but SO AS and he said unfriendly critics stopped short of that SO AS. For it introduced man's freedom. God's

THE RESIDENCE SECTION IS BARRED TO THE SALOONS

Refusing to grant two liquor licenses the council last night took its first decisive action for many months against allowing saloons to invade residence districts.

An application for a permanent saloon stand near the fairgrounds made by William Neumeister, was refused, and the council transferred back to 112 Pearl street the license under which Mr. Neumeister operated a saloon adjoining the grounds during fair week.

Another application to establish a saloon in the old Aiken & Gleason camera factory building at Seventh and La Crosse streets was refused.

The plan to have each alderman furnish a mailing list of constituents to whom council pamphlets should be sent was lost by a vote of 11 to 5. Without a dissenting voice the council declared for war against the county tax.

City Attorney Mahoney want to appeal the Ryan case in which Judge Fruit rendered a decision finding the ordinance regulating hack stands void. The matter was referred to the committee on judiciary.

Alderman Houska introduced an ordinance providing for the creation of the office of electrical inspector. The ordinance was referred to the fire and ordinance committee.

The salary of the north side weighmaster was increased from $10 to $25 per month.

The board of education reported an estimated shortage of $5,000 this year.

The council repealed the ordinances providing for the location of sidewalks on lot lines, and compelling employees of the city engineering department to turn into the city treasury all moneys earned in private work done during regular city office hours.

HEMERY WINS VANDERBILT CUP

(Scripps-McRae Dispatch.)

Mineola, L. I., Oct. 14.—Hemery won the Vanderbilt cup today in the 283 mile race. Heath finished second, 32 seconds behind the leader, but as Hemery started three minutes later than Heath, he won by 3 minutes and 32 seconds corrected time. Hemery drove an 80-horse power Darraco, and took the lead at the end of the eighth round.

Lancia took the lead in the first round, and became the favorite, leading at a terrific pace until in the seventh round he collided with Christie in a bloodless accident.

Nineteen automobiles representing the United States, Germany, France and Italy started. Society was out in force and the weather was ideal.

Car No. 15, a ninety-horse power Pope Toledo, driven by Lytle, skidded on the road at bullhead, throwing Mechanic Tattersall, who was taken to a hospital seriously injured.

Foxhall Keene, crashed into a telegraph pole. Keene escaped injury, but his machine was badly hurt.

Lancia's 110-horsepower F. I. A. T. was leading in the last round; he covered a distance of seven rounds in two hours and 49 minutes and 52 seconds.

Lancia and Christie collided outside of Lakeville, but nobody was hurt.

Lancia kept up a terrific pace from the start and became the favorite in the first round.

Wagner's tire slipped in the second round and he was forced to withdraw.

SIR HENRY IRVING DIES SUDDENLY

(Scripps-McRae Dispatch.)

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Sir Henry Irving died suddenly at Bradford just before midnight. He had appeared at the Theatre Royal as Becket in his dramatization of Lord Tennyson's play of that name, and apparently was enjoying his customary health. He returned to his hotel, where at 11:30 o'clock, he suddenly was attacked by severe pains.

Physicians were summoned, but before they arrived syncope ensued and the distinguished actor died within a few minutes without speaking.

MUST REPAIR NEW COUNTY COURT HOUSE.

La Crosse county's new quarter-of-a-million dollar court house is about to undergo extensive improvements and repairs to remedy several serious defects.

The building and grounds committee of the county board this morning met in the court house and decided among other things to recommend to the board that the following changes be made:

Redecorate ceilings recently repaired in places where plastering has fallen out.

Place felt round edges of heating outlets so that smoke will no longer grime up walls in various offices.

Install more electric lights so that all offices can have movable desk lights.

Put storm windows on register of deeds' office or make other arrangements to warm the room.

Make changes in register of deeds' vault.

This afternoon the committee visited the county jail and decided upon the manner in which the hole through which Andrew Cunningham escaped should be repaired and the underfloor recess through which he crawled to the boiler room closed up. The jail will be made as sound and secure as possible several other minor changes being planned.

THRESH CASE OF TAGGART ONCE MORE

Military Courts to Try Minor et. al.

(Scripps-McRae Dispatch.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 14.—It is likely that the Taggart case with all its sensations will be threshed over again in the military courts. The government is disposed to take steps for the purification of social conditions in the army, and it is said on high authority that Minor and Fortesque will be courtmartialled for their part in the Taggart scandal.

Judge Eason has decided to leave Elmore F. Taggart in the custody of his mother temporarily, while Charles will go with his father to the Columbaries. Both boys will still be regarded as in the custody of the court, as the present arrangements are not final. Judge Eason regards both boys as in the father's control, and refers to the retention of the younger by his mother as a "visit."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR ELECTION

Miss Grace Horne Heads
Union Society.

The local Union Christian Endeavor met last night at the Presbyterian church and elected the following officers:

President—Miss Grace Horne.
Vice president—F. L. Taylor.
Secretary—Miss Kate Fowler.
Treasurer—Mrs. E. C. Davis.

The North Presbyterian church of North La Crosse will be the next place of meeting, Dec. 8. This was the only church to present an invitation to the synod. The society banner, given to the church having the largest attendance was captured by the North Presbyterian church, the Congregational church second.

"The Right Kind of a Workman," was the subject of Dr. W. O. Carrier's address last night. He divided the workman into the following classes:

1. The intelligent or skilled workman.
2. The prayerful seeking workman, searching the counsel and wisdom of God.
3. The cheerful workman manifesting a happy life.
4. The sincere workman, devoid of hypocrisy.
5. and last—The ever watchful workman, who is continually watching over his own life and seeking opportunities to do good to others, that he may receive approval for faithful service.

The Rev. J. K. Fowler, pastor of the South Presbyterian church, presided over the meeting while the Rev. John McCoy led in prayer.

NEW YORK GIANTS ARE CHAMPION

Win Final Game by
Score 2 to 0.

(Scripps-McRae Dispatch.)

New York 2, Athletics 0.
New York Oct. 14.—New York won the game and the championship from the Philadelphia Americans this afternoon. It was a hotly contested battle, but the slab work of the Nationals defied solution. This gives New York a majority of the games scheduled, and settles the championship.

There was an exciting time at the grounds. The crowds began to assemble hours before the game, and when the game was called the spectators were banded against the ropes ten deep, and lucky holders were disposing of seats at $4 each.

The batteries were: Philadelphia, Bender and Powers; New York, Matthewson and Bresnahan.

WAS MRS. BEUTLER DIVORCED

Desertion Charge Hangs on This Point.

Was Mrs. Joseph Beutler divorced from Edward Brownell when she married her second husband, is a legal question which has temporarily stopped proceedings brought against Mr. Beutler for abandonment of his wife and family.

The husband, court officials and attorneys were dumfounded by the evidence brought out on cross examination of Mrs. Beutler indicating that she was not divorced from her first husband when she married the second.

Asked regarding her divorce witness said she thought she secured a legal separation at Merrillan, Jackson county. She paid the judge there, she said, twenty-five dollars and after six weeks' divorce papers were sent to her here at La Crosse. She lost all the papers in a fire, she said.

Mrs. Beutler could not remember the name of the judge who granted her divorce. She never appeared in a court room during the procedure. Circuit court in Jackson county is held at Black River Falls. Witness said she had never been in that city.

The opinion formed in county court this morning was that if Mrs. Beutler paid someone twenty-five dollars to secure her a divorce the money was secured under false pretenses. She could not have secured a divorce, it is pointed out, without appearing in circuit court, and there is no judge or circuit court in Merrillan Junction, where but a few hundred people reside.

Joseph Beutler, who is a night fireman in a local brewery, is charged with deserting his wife and child and another child by his wife's former marriage, two months ago.

Mrs. Beutler testified he had beaten her previous to leaving her and that he stopped her account at a grocery store as soon as he left, compelling her and the children to go to her father's to eat. All of the time during their wedded life, she said, she had been compelled to take in washing to clothe the children.

When the startling facts regarding the alleged divorce from the first husband were brought out on cross examination proceedings in the court were stopped pending an investigation of Jackson county court records. The case was continued until the 27th.

plan in foreordaining all things is SO AS that God is not the author of sin and second causes are not abolished but rather established. The creed leaves man just as free as he knows himself to be free.

Ecclusiastically the Presbyterian church stands for a polity, a form of church government, it is a spiritual republic. Its people vote and govern through representatives elected just as in the American government, which came to its form in this land side by side with the Presbyterian church. Their principles of freedom are the same and were advocated by many of the same men in the revolutionary days. It was a golden mean between one-man power and extreme democracy. It had its disadvantages just as the republic governed by representatives, had to follow the majority. It demanded intelligence in its voters.

And so the church has ever stood for education. The people must be trained to think and know. Higher education has therefore been fostered. Great institutions of learning have been founded and an educated ministry insisted upon. Here the speaker as a college president had his opportunity and advanced his plea for an awakening of Presbyterians to the place the college must fill in the future of the church and the land. He cited the splendid awakening and advance of other church bodies in this line and made it the incentive to larger things by this church which had been given full more of the wealth of the land any other

SOCIETY

This has been a strenuous week for society people, there having been entertainments of all sorts and people have kept their "glad rags" pretty well aired going from one function to another. There have been dinners, teas and luncheons, card parties, birthday parties and church suppers, clubs and banquets, picnics and country rides. At the theatre, Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots" was also enjoyed by a good and appreciative audience. This is a good beginning for the fall campaign and if this state of things keep up no one can complain of a dearth in social affairs.

HOUSE WARMING AND TIN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. August Bartz celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary by entertaining a large number of their friends in their beautiful new home. The rooms were decorated in an artistic manner. In the reception room which was in pink and green were quantities of pink carnations. The parlor was in red. A large bunch of American beauty roses in a hand-

"GOLD GOLD."

"Good," He Says, "But Comfort Better."

"Food that fits is better than a gold mine," says a grateful man.

"Before I commenced to use Grape-Nuts food no man on earth ever had a worse infliction from catarrh of the stomach than I had for years.

"I could eat nothing but the very lightest food and even that gave me great distress.

"I went through the catalogue of prepared foods but found them all (except Grape-Nuts) more or less indigestible, generating gas in the stomach, (which in turn produced headache and various other pains and aches) and otherwise unavailable for my use.

"Grape-Nuts food I have found easily digested and assimilated, and it has renewed my health and vigor and made me a well man again. The catarrh of the stomach has disappeared entirely with all its attendant ills, thanks to Grape-Nuts, which now is my almost sole food. I want no other." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days' trial tells the story. There's a reason.

some vase standing on a beautiful piece of Battenburg occupied a table in the center of the room. In the corners were masses of ferns and roses. In the library were white carnations and ferns. At 10:30 the dining room was thrown open and a chime of wedding bells rang out a welcome to the guests. The decorations in this room were dalias. After an elaborate dinner followed by a musical program was given by Miss Mamie Forster on the violin, assisted by her sisters, Miss Otilie and Miss Kunigunda on the mandolin and piano. Miss Otilie also rendered a vocal solo which she sang with much expression. Mr. and Mrs. Bartz were the recipients of many beautiful presents.

After the tables were cleared Judge Brindley, who was acting toastmaster, called upon J. M. Holley who gave the welcome in the name of the congregation. Dr. Faville responded with a few pleasant remarks, touching briefly upon a few points in his travels and promising to give a series of talks upon them commencing next Sunday evening, which all look forward to with interest. CONSTRUCTION AND OPERATION is an entire departure from any ever used in a stove before, but has been thoroughly tested by constant use for the past eight years with great success.

With it any fuel can be burned with nearly perfect combustion. Besides doing away with the objectionable features of soft coal for house use, such as puffing, gas, soot or smoke. With hard coal or other fuels the gases are all consumed.

TO MERCHANT ADVERTISERS.

It is of importance to every merchant in this city that he know as nearly as possible the relative circulations of the newspapers in which he advertises.

So far as the city is concerned, the most practical way of determining circulation is by a canvass of the entire city. This will eliminate the possibility of "padding."

We therefore make this offer to the La Crosse Retail Merchants' Association:

The Tribune will contribute to the Merchants' Association one-third (1-3) the expense of such a canvass, upon the following conditions:

A committee to have charge of the canvass shall be chosen at a regular meeting of the association, said committee to be elected, and not appointed by the chair.

The fact that said committee is to be elected shall be advertised in the daily papers at least one week prior to said meeting.

Said committee shall employ canvassers to make a systematic canvass of the city, and said canvassers shall report by blocks the exact number of subscribers each paper has in each and every block in the city.

Canvassers shall also make inquiry of subscribers as to whether they have ordered any papers coming to their homes, whether they read them, and expect to pay for them, and whether they have ordered any papers stopped that continue to come to their homes, and whether any such papers are "sample copies," or are delivered on approval.

Of course the Leader-Press and The Chronicle will agree to defray one-third each of this expense, so there should be no delay in causing the canvass to be made. Or perhaps they will decline, "for business reasons."

FOR A "BOOSTING" TRUST.

Now that the preoccupation incident to the Waterways convention is gone, it may be well to take up again the question of proper steps to amalgamate the various civic bodies of La Crosse into one consistent and effective organization.

A gentleman who is new among us, and who is at the head of one of the most important manufacturing in the city, recently expressed to a Tribune representative the belief that "one of the most serious drawbacks La Crosse has is the lack of unification of its civic bodies." He knew nothing of the proposed amalgamation; he simply drew upon his experience in other cities for the understanding that a diversity of small societies with a diversity of purposes and nothing in common, cannot be so effective as a single central organization of which the various bodies shall be auxiliaries.

President Tschanner, of the progressive association, is ready to act. He has so announced on a number of occasions. All that he is waiting for is a second.

Won't somebody please second the motion, so we can get down to business?

THEY ARE MADE IN LA CROSSE.

"Summit ranges, heaters and furnaces stand at the top. THEY ARE MADE IN LA CROSSE."

Did that line catch your eye in the advertisement of the Summit company that appears in this and other papers? It is a modest reference to a fact that should be taken into account by La Crosse people. Did you ever stop to think that it makes a great deal of difference to you whether the things you buy are made in La Crosse? Did it ever occur to you that every dollar expended in manufacturing in La Crosse is a direct benefit to you, no matter what your business or vocation? Did you ever realize that, all things being equal, La Crosse people should buy La Crosse-made goods? Did you ever enter into an agreement with yourself to buy things made in La Crosse whenever they are as good as similar things made in other places?

If you haven't thought these things, think them now. If you have not made it a practice to buy home-made things whenever they are good and to be had, do so now. It is this sort of home loyalty that builds up great cities.

Were you to take a day off to visit the Summit Stove Works, you would be surprised at their extent and importance. There are not three other plants in La Crosse of the importance of this new institution. It is paying its dollars to La Crosse labor. La Crosse people should pay their dollars for its product in preference to buying the product of similar concerns so far away that these dollars paid them never build La Crosse buildings, or pay La Crosse laborers or buy La Crosse groceries, dry goods, clothing, etc.

"La Crosse dollars for La Crosse enterprises," is a motto the adoption of which will build up a great city on the sands where The Tall Trader first pitched his wigwam.

A PROVOKING PERFORMANCE.

The evidence introduced at the trial of Dr. Whipple for alleged practicing of osteopathy without a license under the name of "chiropractics," was a distinct boost to chiropractics or osteopathy or whatever the treatment employed may be. The defendant was found guilty upon failure to show that there is an essential difference between osteopathy and chiropractics, but proved the performance of remarkable cures.

The defense attempted to show this important point by the evidence of D. D. Palmer, of Davenport. That worthy person runs a school of chiropractics there, and is said to have volunteered to give testimony as an expert. The defense relied upon him solely to prove the controverted point.

Mr. Palmer came here and talked a great deal with his mouth prior to the trial, but when placed on the witness stand, declined to differentiate between osteopathy and chiropractics, unless the court or the defendant or some other liberal citizen would pay him $500, the price of a scholarship. The impression was given that either no difference exists or Palmer did not know the difference.

The shallow position of this practitioner, if he actually knew of any difference or thought he did, should place him in bad repute with all followers of the school of chiropractics. Here was to be determined the question of whether or not chiropractors shall be permitted to practice in Wisconsin. If they cannot, and the fact becomes known, Mr. Palmer's school will get no students from Wisconsin, for obviously men will not pay their good money to learn a profession from the practice of which they are debarred by law. No more narrow nor selfish view can be imagined than that of Mr. Palmer, and there would be no regret in the minds of the disgusted judge and jurors were it to prove an expensive experience to him. The spectators entertained a sensation of having measured small potatoes when the "expert" left the stand.

Dr. Whipple has appealed to the circuit court, and says that he will be prepared with a capable expert who is both a chiropractor and an osteopath, to bring the alleged distinction to the attention of the court. If a meritorious system is being stilted by a badly drawn law, a final victory for the defendant will be welcomed; if, however, chiropractics is a makeshift for osteopaths not duly equipped with a knowledge of anatomy, the practice should be confined to legitimate graduates.

Rocks and Dollars

An accidental sketch by August E. Gans, Chicago.

We were strangers in La Crosse and it was Sunday morning.

The hotel was remarkably comfortable, but all creation invited us to enjoy its October magnificence outdoors.

We accepted the invitation with thanks, left the composition of brick, lumber and stone known as the city, and went out due east into free and independent, laughing and friendly, kind and sunny nature for the purpose of meeting once more its winged children, the birds and the beautifying frame of all landscapes, the nodding wild flowers.

The writer being a civil engineer by profession, confesses to a predilection for the shortest distance between any two points, that is a straight line. Hence we did not object to the straight and shady road leading towards the rising sun.

As the signs of a city diminished and the over hanging foliage on each side grew less, we noticed that our good fortune had led us straight to a line of hills, the nearest of which faced us with a picturesque and partly forbidding looking rocky formation the soft browns of which blended with different shades of yellows, mingled prettily with the autumn tints of the framing foliage, emphasized by an occasional and decisive red.

Robins here and there picked their breakfast, a solitary bluejay crossed the road, but the absence of all autumn flowers was general and decisive.

As we neared the hills and especially our rocky signpost, the road became more and more country like and dusty, but one bunch of wild asters finally greeted us smilingly to the left of the road.

We returned the greeting.

In the distance at the foot of the hills we saw signs of civilization and as we approached we found "civilization" had defied nature and ascended boldly on the right to the top of the rocks when apparently it had cut deep into the magnificent picture presented by nature to the city of La Crosse.

We crossed a railroad track, winding along the foot of the hills and to the right we noticed an elevator-like structure, which we afterwards found to be a rock crusher, belonging to the "civilization" which had undertaken to deface nature.

To the left we found a tolerably decent, but unimproved road winding up the hill, and below it a deep fringe of high grasses, low bushes and faded golden rods, sadly bidding adieu to departing summer, while still further down a splendid meadow spread out between hill and railroad, in emerald glory, for the special benefit of some good citizens who also preferred golf and nature to bells of churches.

Slowly we went up the road, resting now and then, picking a belated golden rod here and a stalk of asters there until we noticed a trail, partly deepened rains ascending straight up on the right.

After a council of war we decided to follow that trail, and I now desire to offer my deepest apology to the dusty road for having come to that decision.

The "climb" was difficult; in places very difficult; rain-exposed roots formed steps, requiring extraordinary exertions, in other spots rocks and roots combined in the same direction in fact the ascent was almost equal to mountain-climbing in the Sierra Nevada.

At last we reached a mediumsized, projecting plateau of flat rocks nearly as level as if hewn out of the hill to serve as resting place for a small picnic party, and here we received nature's first reward for our tedious work in reaching the spot. The air was pure the sun insinuatingly mild, a deep quiet rested over the scene and the entire valley of the Mississippi was rolled out before us as far as the range of hills on its Minnesota side, far up to the north and down to the south.

The view was simply entrancing and limited to the east only by the further ascending part of the hills. To the left we now saw that the line ascending the hill was a trestlework for rolling down or sliding down large rocks for crushing purposes.

In drinking in large draughts, the unexpected beauty of the landscape I could not help registering a curious and emphatic "WHY?"

Why has the city of La Crosse not only absolutely ignored and neglected this beautiful spot to the injury—artistically—of itself and all of its other mortals, but why has it actually permitted it to fall into the hands of those, who turn it into cold though effective dollars as devoid of sentiment as the skeleton of a mastodon?

The writer has travelled very considerably on different continents, has seen a great deal of the world, professionally, as a surveyor, and simply as a traveller and therefore, takes the liberty of speaking somewhat ex cathedra. He could not help musing while sitting up there, several hundred feet above money-making as well as money-earning—what an inducement it would be to the traveller to stop over at La Crosse and visit "Granddad's Bluff" if he knew of a good road to its foot and were a pretty Swiss stable with patient burros to carry him up the hill, at its top an inn to refresh and entertain him with an observatory containing a circular-moving telescope to take in the entire landscape!

And he might go up there in the afternoon, rest there comfortably during the night and awake refreshed to see the glorious spectacle of the sun rise to disclose the Mississippi far in excess to those of the "mounds" of St. Paul.

And as a landscape engineer I ruminated over the possibility of making the entire landscape between La Crosse and Granddad's Bluff one grand, magnificent park, including on the west Pettibone island—in fact I was dreaming and involuntarily descending into the same sordid scheme—bound up with dollars and cents—that caused a rock-crusher to embrace Granddad Bluff—only I was speculating for the entire American people and its visitors, while the rock-crusher simply thinks of "pel" for "self."

And now you will allow me to take leave of you on the very top of "Granddad's Bluff" for the disappearance of which you all will mourn in twenty-five or fifty years from now—if by that time the dollar has not completely wiped out "sentiment," and its place has been usurped by "business," gaunt, cold and dollar-esque.

JUST LIFE

McCall's Joke.

"It is an entire misconception of the function of a life insurance company to consider it as organized for the benefit of making money, or of declaring dividends to the person who pays the premium. * * * The Mutual Life Insurance company was organized upon the theory that it was a great, beneficent missionary institution. * * * It was not the object to declare a dividend to a man; it was not the object that he should carry a policy of $2,500 or $3,000 and pay the premium of $19.28, or whatever it might be, and then at the end of the year get $7 and go home and spend it for cigars and billiards. * * * That the life insurance company is an eleemosynary institution, to a very large extent I have always believed all my life, and I believe it today."—Testimony of Mr. McCurdy before the Legislative Investigating Committee.

OLD SWEETHEART.

Last evening I sat with a sweetheart of mine, Where the logs in the fireplace burned red, And the embers' warm glow, as we rocked to and fro, Scorched the dial of Time as he fled.

With proverbial trials in years that were gone The course of true love had been strewn; But now, quite alone, there was peace in our hearts In the haze of that sanctified room.

I, in bliss, lightly thought of those troubles of yore, And of all the M. D.s who had said They would keep us apart for the sake of my heart, And decreed that we never should wed.

With her breath in my nostrils I drifted away On our love to dream memories deep; And her arms wrapped around me in loving embrace, Lady Nicotine rocked me to sleep. —FANNY FAN.

OLAF "TREATS" AND GOES TO JAIL

Notorious Olaf Olson, with a record of having spent three terms in Waupun, innumerable sentences in the county jail and who recently inherited $700 from his sister is again in jail, "drunk."

Before starting out on his "tear" yesterday Olaf tipped all the officers in the central station to "cigars," thinking that for this reason he would be unmolested. The cigars must have turned out to be stogies as Olaf was arrested very soon after he accumulated his "jag."

BOY SHOT IN THE LEG AT A BANGOR CHARIVARI PARTY.

While a crowd of boys were serenading a wedding party at the home of Evan Jenkins in Bangor Wednesday night a .38 calibre revolver in the hands of some reckless member of the crowd was discharged and the bullet entered the leg of William Hesselberg, causing a deep and dangerous wound.

The bullet entered the leg at the groin, plowing downward through the flesh of the limb. The injured boy was taken to the Elsen house where Drs. Newton and DePierre made an X-ray examination of the limb and located the bullet, which was removed. He will recover.

"I am pleased to say that I have enjoyed splendid health now for nearly a year. I have a fine appetite, enjoy sound sleep and do not suffer from any more headaches or other pains."—L. E. Tyler.

America is the Land of Nervous Women.

The majority of women are nervous because they suffer from some form of female disease.

The greatest obstacle in the way of recovery is that they do not understand that catarrh is the main source of their illness.

Women who are in doubt as to their ailments should write to Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O. Give him a full description of your symptoms, previous treatment and age.

He will promptly reply with full directions for treatment, free of charge.

THE GAME OF LIFE.

Your Own Resolution, and Not Fate,
Deals the Cards.

Many a man has tried to justify his failure on the ground that he was doomed by the cards which fate dealt him, that he must pick them up and play the game and that no effort, however great, on his part could materially change the result. But, my young friend, the fate that deals your cards is in the main your own resolution. The result of the game does not rest with fate or destiny, but with you. You will take the trick if you have the superior energy, ability and determination requisite to take it. You have the power within yourself to change the value of the cards which, you say, fate has dealt you. The game depends upon your training, upon the way you are disciplined to seize and use your opportunities and upon your ability to put grit in the place of superior advantages.

Just because circumstances do sometimes give clients to lawyers and patients to physicians, but commonplace clergymen in uncommon pulpits and place the sons of the rich at the head of great corporations even when they have only average ability and scarcely any experience, while poor youths with greater ability and more experience often have to fight their way for years to obtain ordinary situations, are you justified in starting out without a chart or in leaving a place for luck in your programme? What would you think of the captain of a great liner who would start out to sea without any port in view and trust to luck to land his precious cargo safely?

Did you ever know of a strong young man making out his life programme and depending upon chance to carry out any part of it? Men who depend upon "luck" do not think it worth while to make a thorough preparation for success. They are not willing to

IN "HIS HIGHNESS, THE BEY."

WEEK OF JOY FOR PATRONS OF THEATRE

A SUNDAY TREAT.

With a profusion of musical numbers and unequalled song hits "His Highness, the Bey," after a five months' run in Chicago, comes to La Crosse tomorrow evening.

The unexcelled cast to be seen here includes Mabel McCane, Hettie Peters, Cora Beach Turner, Elsie De-Beau, Phil W. Peters, William H. Thompson, Justin J. Cooper, Edward Allen, Bert Swan, and over fifty others including twelve famous "broilers," as the little dancing girls are known.

"His Highness the Bey," will appear here with all of the original scenic and electrical production.

Prices, 25c to $1; boxes $1.50.

"MRS. WIGGS," TOO.

Whippet fanciers will be interested in the coming of Anna Field who has the role of Mrs. Schultz, the neighborhood censor, in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Miss Field, who is an English girl, is an expert in whippet racing, and carries with her two of the best bred and fastest dogs ever brought from Great Britain. They have won cups and matches innumerable and are the gift of her father who is a promoter of the sort at Melton Mowbray.

ADE'S "THE SHO-GUN."

Henry W. Savage announces an early production in this city of his choicest musical offering, the Korean comic opera, "The Sho-Gun," by George Ade and Gustav Luders. It will be given here with the same marked completeness which is distinctive of all productions bearing the Savage trade mark and it is safe to predict for it at least a measure of the success it won last year when first sent on tour. The opera marks the first joint work of America's foremost author and composer, George Ade and Gustav Luders, and both men have given of the very best within them to evolve so charming and fascinating an attraction as this opera. A cast of brilliancy and a chorus of beauty together, with a magnificent scenic equipment will mark the engagement of the production in this city.

FIDDLERS AND DRUMMERS.

The Two Classes of Insects That Produce Audible Sounds.

Insects that produce sounds audible to human ears have been roughly divided into two classes—fiddlers and drummers. The grasshopper is a fiddler and makes music by scraping its fore wings against the rows of spinelike teeth that ornament its thighs. The katydid also plays an entomological fiddle. It produces its notes by rubbing the inner side of the hind legs over the front wings.

The locust, on the other hand, is a drummer, and a loud one too. His drum is formed by a membrane situated at the base of the fore wing, and he can make a forest ring with it. The cicada, or seventeen year locust, carries a drum at the base of the abdomen and makes with it a noise that seems to be quite as terrifying in the insect world as that produced by the gorilla pounding its resounding chest in among wild beasts. It is said that the cicada sometimes frightens away its enemies with the rattle of its drum.

There are other drumming insects which make good music, but the violinists, after all, carry off the palm, for the great insect soloist, the cricket, is a fiddler.

The Month of August.

Few persons know why August has thirty-one days. July, which takes its name from Julius Caesar, has thirty-one days, and Augustus, who completed the calendar, declined to submit to the indignity of seeing his own month branded with the inferiority of one day less. The astronomers had accordingly to reshuffle the lunar cards, and, after some perplexity, hit upon the expedient of shearing twenty-four hours from February's glory in order that August might face the world on a footing of perfect equality with July.

His Insanity.

"Your honor," said the attorney, "this man's insanity takes the form of a belief that every one wants to rob him. He won't allow even me, his counsel, to approach him."
"Maybe he's not so crazy after all," murmured the court in a judicial whisper.—London Express.

The bullet came through the front window and was probably shot by some one who was hunting in the marsh east of the causeway. A police investigation is being held.

LONG ENGAGEMENTS.

A Woman's Plan by Which to Bring About Happy Marriages.

Marriage is an institution of the state; therefore she should put it out of the bonds of possibility that people can marry each other in two days or a week. How many marriages would be broken off if the state required a three years' engagement before people are married? After all, if a woman wants to become a nun in two months, no convent in the world will accept her. She must be a novice for two or three years. During that time she has to make an examination of her conscience every day and to find out if she has a vocation for a nun. But women and men marry without the slightest preparation, without the slightest thought of the future, while Dame Nature laughs at her most odd pairings. She wants her world peopled. That is her part. The men and women who are ill suited to each other are not her affair.

Girls and boys at school should be taught to look upon marriage as the most beautiful, the happiest, the most desirable and the most possible thing in the world. Boys should be taught to keep their minds and their bodies pure for the state which they will probably enter and to have a sense of protection and loyalty to girls, and girls should be taught industry, self sacrifice and responsibility for the married state.—Mrs. T. P. O'Connor in Black and White.

FEMININE GAMBLERS

WOMEN WHO HAVE WON FAME BY THEIR RECKLESS WAGERS.

France has furnished the greater number of these famous players. Nell Gwynn's Darling Play—The "Art" of Lonna Paquita.

From time to time throughout the world gambling among women has flourished and declined. The pages of history tell over and over again the story of great women gamblers. France has furnished the greater number of these, but England has not been far behind, while America has put forth many whose fame has become international.

There seems to be something in the blood of French women that makes them gamblers of a high order. Mme. de Montespan won so much at basset, her favorite game, that Louis IV. was delighted and borrowed some of her winnings, but she lost a great deal at times, and her play grew so furious that in 1682 Louis abolished the game. It is recorded of madame that she, one night, while the king looked on at play, risked a sum equal to $40,000 on a single card and that the king grumbled when no one could be found to cover the bet. But madame also lost, one New Year night, 700,000 crowns at hoca and on another night almost $200,000 at the same game.

Mme. du Barry was the most famous woman gambler of the time of Louis XV., but with her it was only a pastime. But that other favorite, Mme. de Pompadour, went in with the sole object of winning, if she could. It is recorded that her winnings were enormous and that in a single night she eased the pockets of the king of 25,000 louis d'or.

Queen Marie Antoinette, according to history, was a gambler who liked to be surrounded by gamblers. Faro was the popular game, but the stakes got to be so great that many a nobleman had his entire estates wiped out in a single night. Scandal rose high, and the game was forbidden. Nevertheless, in a short time it was being carried on again not only in the apartments of the queen, but at the house of the Princess de Lamballe. At first the queen and those who desired to play with her went to the apartments of Mme. de Guemene, whose house is credited with having been the scene of the highest continued play of any in France. But matters got so bad before the end came that noblewomen would no longer play with the queen, and she admitted to her table many common gamblers. Then the scandal broke in full force, for some were caught cheating, and one was even arrested for picking a pocket.

Possibly the most famous woman gambler of English history was Nell Gwynn, the actress who was so great a favorite with Charles II. In that reign the manners were much the same as they were at the French court. Nell Gwynn lost $5,000 to her rival, the Duchess of Cleveland, and in one year lost upward of $60,000, which the king paid. There had never been known so much gambling among women as was carried on in that reign. After the Duchess of Mazarin, niece of the cardinal, had lost $1,000,000 she died in absolute want.

The acknowledged queen of American women gamblers was Lonna Paquita, who was born in Texas about 1850, but early went into Mexico to rule over outlaws and cowboys. The little Lonna was scarcely twelve years of age when she fell in with an old time gambler named Qualtor, who taught her every trick known to the gambler's art. She made her first appearance in Paso del Norte. She was only a child, and the rough gamblers laughed at her.

But they soon found that they were no match for her, and that even her teacher, Qualtor, was a tenderfoot compared with the child. With the passing years Lonna Paquita grew to be a beautiful woman. Her hair was as black as night, she had eyes that confounded those of the gamblers who played with her and a voice as sweet and silvery as a bell. She was as handsome a woman as one could wish to see, but with heart of ice and nerves of iron. Her small white hands could manipulate the cards with a skill that defied the watchfulness of the keenest gambler.

There were many people who thought it was merely luck that followed her, but the luck kept up too long, and the gamblers who knew a few tricks themselves understood that it was "art." Still, no one was ever known to catch her cheating. Before she was twenty Lonna Paquita was in New Mexico leading a gang of the worst characters of the southwest.

Her death occurred in 1875, and was tragic. Some lawless acts had been committed by a body of greasers, and search was made for them. Lonna Paquita was found to be their leader and was caught. She only laughed when she was taken, and proposed that a game of cards be played to see whether she should go free or kill herself. This was agreed to, and one of the party, a gambler known the country around, was selected. The woman lost. Those who looked on had scarcely time to understand this when Lonna Paquita drew a knife from her belt and plunged it into her heart.

The women of today, although they doubtless gamble as heavily as in other times, incline more to speculation in stocks. The new woman will go on gambling, but appearances show that she cares a great deal more for the money there is in it than she does for the notoriety of being a gambler.—Liverpool Mercury.

BABES IN THE WOOD.

A Seventeenth Century Incident in the State of Maine.

In 1679 James Adams of York became affronted with one of his neighbors, Henry Simpson, and determined to avenge himself upon two of Simpson's children, whose ages were six and nine years. In a solitary place four or five miles from the dwelling houses of the inhabitants he built of logs beside a ledge of perpendicular rocks a pen or pound several feet high, with walls inclined inward from bottom to top. After he had built this he decoyed the children into the woods under a pretense of searching for birds' nests and caused them to enter within the pound, where he left them confined to perish. The place has since been called the Devil's Invention.

The children were soon missed, and the alarmed inhabitants searched for them more than forty-eight hours. The boys, when aware of their wretched situation, made various attempts to get out, and at length, by digging away with their hands the surface of the earth underneath one of the bottom logs, effected their escape. They wandered in the woods three days, being at last attracted to the seashore by the noise of the surf, where they were found.

The depraved criminal was condemned to have thirty stripes well laid on, to pay the father of the children $5, the treasurer $10, besides fees and charges of the prison, and remain a close prisoner during the court's pleasure or till further order. The same month he recognized before two of the judges, "conditioned to send him, within twenty-one days, out of the jurisdiction."

GENTLEMEN OF ENGLAND.

How Their Claims Were Established in the Middle Ages.

A curious meeting was held in Lyons on Jan. 4, 1899. The royal commissioners solemnly sat in council to decide the question if lawyers and doctors could be regarded as gentlemen. It proved too hard a problem for the wise heads, and the doctors and lawyers themselves were summoned to prove their right to gentility. The matter was settled to the satisfaction of the professional parties.

In the middle ages of England heralds went through the counties to examine into the claims of landholders to be called gentlemen. There is in existence an interesting list of the disqualified, and one reads today the shame of a certain Thomas Robbins who failed to establish the title and was writ among the ignoble. Charles Anscote, a representative of one of the oldest families, is registered as "entitled to be styled a gentleman, although worth not more than $500."

Brooke, an old writer, has given the world his opinion of what constitutes a gentleman, and his definition has never been excelled:

"The character, or, rather, quality, of a gentleman does not in any degree depend on fashion or mode or state or opinion; neither does it change with customs, climates or ages. But, as the spirit of God alone can inspire it, so it is that quality of heart which is the same yesterday, today and forever."

Houses in Ceylon.

The natives of the interior of Ceylon finish walls and roof with a paste of slaked lime, gluten and alum, which glazes and is so durable that specimens three centuries old are now to be seen. In Sumatra the native women braid a coarse cloth of palm leaves for the edge and top of the roof. Many of the old Buddhist temples in India and Ceylon had roofs made out of cut stone blocks, hewed timber and split bamboo poles. Uneven planks—cut from the old and dead palm trees, seldom from living young trees—are much used in the Celebes and Philippines. Shark skins form the roofs for fishermen in the Andaman islands.

Hustling the Clergy.

A western newspaper man once connected with a journal in Denver was one day in conversation with his chief when a clerical looking gentleman entered the office.

"Sir," said he gravely, "I intend next Sunday to preach a sermon upon football, and it has occurred to me that an enterprising paper like yours would be pleased to have my manuscript. I have no doubt that any number of your readers would be glad to read it and—"

"All right, all right," interrupted the busy editor, "but you'll have to hustle it along. Get it in early—early, mind! Our sporting page is the first to close."

The Salt in the Ocean.

If the ocean did not have salt it would freeze somewhat more readily than it does now, but there would be no very marked difference. The ocean is prevented from freezing not so much by its salt as by its size and by its commotion. On account of its size large portions of it extend into warm climates at all seasons, and by reason of its great depth it is a vast storehouse of heat. Its currents distribute much warm water among the cold.—St. Nicholas.

QUEER PROBLEMS OF LAW.

Cases With Which English Judges and Lawyers Have Struggled.

Hundreds of years of test cases have not yet elucidated all the possible points of difficulty in the English law.

Here is a remarkable problem with which the Blackburn lawyers have just been confronted: An English gentleman had twin sons who were born within a few minutes of each other. He made a will that his property in Australia should go to whichever of the two sons arrived at the age of twenty-one first.

The younger of the two emigrated to Australia, while the other one remained in England, and the former was still in the antipodes at the time of his coming of age. Now, Australian time is some hours in advance of Greenwich, and therefore the young man out there was twenty-one before his elder brother at home. Which of these two brothers is legally entitled to the property? The question has not yet been decided, and in the meantime readers may exercise their own acumen upon it.

Are eggs, eggs, or are only hens' eggs? This may seem a ridiculous question, but nice shades of meaning are involved, and a case which turned upon it went through two or three courts of law. A lady sent an order for a dozen eggs to a dairyman, and he sent her ducks' eggs. She sent them back as not being what she ordered, but he refused to take them. She, in turn, declined to keep them, and some time elapsed between their journeys from the house to the shop, the eggs went bad, and eventually the shopkeeper sued the lady for $8.64, their value.

The county court judge ordered her to pay, declaring that ducks' eggs were as much eggs as any others. But the lady appealed, and king's bench reversed the decision on the ground that when a party ordered eggs hens' eggs were meant, and if any other contention were admitted any kind of eggs might be sent, such as pigeons, canaries or even rattlesnakes. Ducks' eggs, it was decided, were not eggs in the ordinary meaning of the term.

Are the grandchildren of a man also his children? In the legal sense this question is not so absurd as it looks, and some time ago it was most seriously and laboriously contended in the courts that according to act of parliament they were.

The particular act in question, passed in the reign of the late queen Victoria, laid it down that "the father and the grandfather, the mother and the grandmother and the children of any poor person, being of sufficient ability, shall relieve and maintain any such poor person."

The argument was that, according to the context, grandchildren were to be reckoned as children for this purpose, just as grandparents were reckoned as parents. On the other side it was argued that if grandchildren were children then great-grandchildren were children also and that a man might in this way be called upon to support his father and mother, his four grandparents, his eight great-grandparents and as many grandchildren and great-grandchildren as he might be lucky or unlucky enough to possess.

Is skimmed milk milk? A man asked for a glass of milk to drink and was given skimmed milk, and the purveyor was fined for it. But in a higher court the decision was reversed, it being contended at the time that skimmed milk was really much more milk than milk that was not skimmed, since the latter contained something that was not milk at all—that is, cream.—London Tit-Bits.

Literary Coincidences.

How strange are literary coincidences occasionally is illustrated in the case of Thackeray and Dumas. Thackeray says: "I came near writing a book on the same subject, 'Les Trois Mousquetaires,' and taking M. d'Artagnan for my hero. D'Artagnan was a real character of the age of Louis XIV. and wrote his own memoirs. I remember picking up a dingy copy of them on an old bookstall in London, price sixpence, and intended to make something of it. But Dumas got ahead of me. He snaps up everything." A coincidence quite as remarkable occurred with Sir Conan Doyle for central figure. He learned while spending a holiday in a mountain inn in Switzerland that during the winter months for some reason two men remained in occupation. For four or five months they were isolated from the rest of the world. Suppose one of them went mad or committed suicide or—The possibilities were endless. He forthwith determined to embody the idea in a story. On his way home he happened to pick up a book of tales by Maupassant. There in it, under the title, "L'Auberge," he found himself forestalled in every particular.

BITE OF GIRL MORE POISONOUS THAN A SNAKE.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 14.—Professor W. D. Miller, of the University of Berlin, sent shivers down the backs of some of the students at Wesleyan when he announced in a lecture that the bite of a pretty girl would often bring a quicker and more horrible death than the bite of a serpent.

Professor Miller, who has made a special study of the bacteria of the mouth, said that only a short time ago he experimented on a beautiful girl in Germany, and found that an arrow dipped in saliva from her mouth would send its victim in death throes more terrible than one dipped in the venom of the most deadly snake.

Professor Miller said that there was a lesson in this for dentists, who should always be careful when putting their fingers in the mouths of pretty girls that they do not scratch or wound their fingers on jagged teeth, for in most cases it means a horrible death.

Neither should mothers and fathers allow babies to chew their fingers, for fatal results are likely to come from it. The professor was of the opinion that if this fact became known women could go about unmolested at all times, provided they were not toothless.

THE NEWTON OF MODERN SCIENCE

Achievements of Henry Cavendish Are Marvelous.

Henry Cavendish, the great English scientist, was one of the shiest of men. So far as we have any record, he was only ill once in his life, and that illness killed him at the respectable age of seventy-nine.

He told his physician that "any prolongation of life would only prolong his miseries," and he died, as he had lived, alone. For the ordinary human relations of life he seemed to care nothing; he was absorbed in his experiments and loved his books and his laboratory more than anything else on earth. Henry Cavendish, who has been called "the modern Newton," was born in 1731, only four years after Newton's death. He was educated at a private school at Hackney, from which he passed to Peterhouse, Cambridge, which he left three years later without a degree. Thereafter he was a man of science, devoting his whole life to experimental philosophy.

"The man who weighed the world," wrote Henry Cavendish's cousin, the late Duke of Devonshire, "buried his science and his wealth in solitude at Clapham." His science, however, he did not bury, for he published to the world certain facts which placed him in the first rank of experimental philosophers. It was he who converted oxygen and hydrogen into water and proved that it consists of these gases; it was he who first stated the difference between animal and common electricity, and it was he who, by a course of ingenious experiments, weighed the world.

Cavendish had no vanity. He cared for no one's praise, avoided society and was, as one must suppose, an unhappy man. For money he cared little. Up to his fortieth year he was comparatively poor, probably having an annual income of no more than £500, but in 1773 an uncle died who left him an enormous fortune. Of that he spent very little. He was one of those rare men who have no idea of the value of money. His personal needs were very simple, and the fact that he was rich never seems to have struck him as a matter of interest.

Cavendish had two houses, one on Clapham common and another near the British museum, at the corner of Gower street and Montague place. He had few visitors, but his library was at the service of any one who cared to use it, yet, so anxious was he to be undisturbed, that he hired a house in Dean street in which to accommodate his books and paid a librarian to look after them. When he wanted to refer to his books, he went around as though to a circulating library and left a receipt for whatever he took away, an admirable idea, which should be encouraged nowadays.

His house at Clapham was practically a workshop. The upper rooms were converted into an observatory, the drawing room—Cavendish had no use for drawing rooms—was a laboratory, and in an anteroom he had fixed up a forge. On the lawn he erected a stage, which enabled him to reach the top of a large tree, on which secure and isolated perch he could be absolutely alone with his thoughts.

As a host one gathers that this strange being was hardly a success. The very few people who were admitted to his table were always given the same fare—a leg of mutton. On one occasion four scientific men were to dine with him. When his housekeeper consulted him as to what she was to give them to eat, he said a leg of mutton. "Sir," said the good soul, "that will not be enough for five." "Well, then, get two," he replied. And this man, who was content to eat mutton everlastingly, had no sense of beauty. He cared for nothing beyond his own work. His biographer, Dr. George Wilson, said of him:

"There was nothing earnest, enthusiastic, heroic or chivalrous in the nature of Cavendish, and as little was there anything mean, groveling or ignoble. He was almost passionless. All that needed for his apprehension more than pure intellect or required the exercise of fancy, imagination, affection or faith was distasteful to Cavendish. An intellectual head thinking, a pair of wonderful, acute eyes observing and a pair of very skillful hands experimenting or recording are all that I realize in reading his memorials."

He simply left his income to accumulate. One day his bankers, finding that they had a balance of £80,000 to his credit, sent up a messenger to consult him about it. Cavendish was extremely perturbed, but he consented to see the messenger. "What do you come here for?" he asked. "What do you want with me?"

"Sir, I thought it proper to wait upon you, as we have a very large balance in hand of yours, and we wish your orders respecting it."

"If it is any trouble to you I will take it out of your hands. Do not come here to plague me!"

"Not the least trouble to us, sir; not the least, but we thought you might like some of it to be invested."

"Well, well, what do you want to do?"

"Perhaps you would like £40,000 invested."

"Do so; do so! And don't come here to trouble me or I'll remove it."

He was essentially a shy man, to whom it was even difficult to speak. Dr. Wollaston said: "The way to talk to Cavendish is never to look at him, but to talk, as it were, into vacancy, and then it is not unlikely you may set him going." And Professor Playfair, who was a frequent visitor to the Royal Society club, said: "Mr. Cavendish is a member of this meeting. He is of an awkward appearance and has not much the look of a man of rank. He speaks likewise with great difficulty and hesitation and very seldom. But the gleams of genius break often through this unpromising exterior. He never speaks at all but it is exceedingly to the purpose and either brings some excellent information or draws some important conclusion."

Cavendish's shyness amounted almost to a disease. He shrank from speech with strangers, and if he were approached abruptly he would dart away with a cry like a scared animal. At such entertainments as he attended he would often stand on the landing, afraid to face the company on the other side of the door, nor would he open it until the approach of some one from behind drove him forward.

On one occasion at a party at Sir Joseph Banks' house a certain Dr. Ingenhousz took upon himself to praise Cavendish to his face in a high and pompous manner by way of introduction to an Austrian gentleman who was present. The Austrian promptly took the cue, loaded the unfortunate philosopher with compliments and assured him that he had come to London mainly to meet him. Cavendish stood with downcast eyes in abject misery, speaking never a word. Then he saw an opening in the crush, flew to the door, jumped into his carriage and drove home at full speed.

Women he hated. His usual method of communication with his housekeeper was by means of notes left on the hall table, and if any female servant came into his presence she was instantly dismissed. To guard against chance meetings with his household he had a second staircase erected in his Clapham villa. Lord Brougham remembered "the shrill cry he uttered as he shuffled quickly from room to room, seeming to be annoyed if looked at, but sometimes approaching to hear what was passing among others."

This extraordinary man left a fortune of £1,750,000. His heir, Lord George Cavendish, was only permitted to see him once a year, and then for no longer than half an hour. He never changed the fashion of his dress, a fact which naturally drew the attention to him which he was so anxious to avoid. He was indeed a man of pure science, in whose constitution there seemed no room for human kindness.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

BANK PROJECTORS FIGHT FOR FIELD

MELROSE, Wis., Oct. 14.—Hon. H. L. Ekren, of Whitehall, Wis., and Mr. J. B. Halverson of Northfield, Jackson county, were in town Tuesday and Wednesday, looking over the place with a view of establishing a bank. Owing to the fact that Freeman Dell, of Black River Falls, had already started a bank project, no definite was decided on. Mr. Halverson recently sold his interest in the general store at Northfield to H. A. M. Stein, and will have charge of the bank if one is established here. Financially they were willing to furnish all the capital without local subscription providing they were assured of the good will and patronage of our business and professional men.
